THE SECOND TRIAL OF HERBERT .- When we concluded our report yesterday, at the time of going to press, Patrick Keating was on the stand, and the counsel for prosecution and defence were in the midst of a warm contest, raised by the attempt of the defence to draw from the witness whether other witnesses for the prosecution had joined with him to raise a fund to fee counsel.

The Court decided that with reference to what contributions had been made for a reseparately as he came up.

The witness in answer to a question of Mr. Bradley said he had not made an engagement with any persons to go out and solicit subscrip-

Captain Blanding, a witness for defence. was here, by consent of the prosecution, permitted to testify, as it was necessary for him to leave the city -Witness was at Willards' on the morning of the affray; was standing in front of the office about eleven o'clock in conversation with a gentleman; heard a noise in the dining-room, which he first thought was the breaking of crockery, but the noise increasing, it occurred to him that a fight was going on among the waiters; walked leisurely to the door of the dining room, and, while standing at the door, saw several persons engaged in a conflict near the pantry door; here persons were bent down considerably behind the table; it was a violent struggle of men all in a cluster; he was convinced it was some fracas of waiters, and turned to go back; just as he turned, he heard the report of a pistol; this drew his attention to the scene; saw Mr. Herbert emerge, as it were, from this mass of men, and then for the first time, recognized Mr. Herbert as being in the fray; could not say if there were more than three or four persons in the affray; thinks if there were not more than two he should have noticed it; did not recognize any person in the group; did not see any person in a white hat and apron; can not say whether the cook was there or not

Cross examined .- Did not see Col McKay in the dining-room; did not see Arnold Harris, Gardiner, or Bishop; at the commencement of the fracas he was standing in company with Col McKay and Gen Persifer F Smith, in front of the office; when the pistol was fired there was a considerable moving backwards of those standing in the passage as if they feared another shot might be fired.

John Enbright examined for prosecution -He testified to being present at the time Herbert called for his breakfast on the morning of the affray; Riordan brought a portion of it and went for more; he came back and went to second head-waiter to inquire Herbert's name, to go the office and get an order for the breakfast; Herbert told Riordan to clear out, and called him a d-d Irish son of a bitch, and then turned to deceased and said the same words to him; witness was standing by the pantry door at the time; Herbert got up and went towards Tom Keating and struck him with his fist on the back of the neck; Tom Keating caught hold of a plate, and Herbert picked up a chair and threw it; Tom Keating threw the plate; they both jostled together; Gardiner came in and threw a chair at Tom Keating; Herbert, Tom Keating, and Gardiner jostled together some time; Pat Keating came in; Herbert left Gardiner and Tom Keating, and passed witness towards Pat Keating; Herbert met Pat Keating near the pantry door; Herbert pulled out his pistol, Pat Keating got hold of the muzzle, and Herbert had hold of the stock; Tom Keating came around the tables towards them; Gardiner came up and struck Pat Keating with a chair; Tom Keating came up and struck Pat Keating, by mistake, with a with a chair; the cook jostled Pat Keating away; witness was standing not more than two feet from the parties at the time of the shot; when Pat Keating lost his hold of the pistol, Herbert caught Tom Keating by his coat, shirt and vest, and, putting his pistol to the breast of Tom Keating, fired; the cook stood there until Herbert left the room, and then followed him out, step by step; after the shot was fired. Tom Keating cried out that he was shot, put his hands to his breast, and went over to the east side of the room; after he took down his hands the blood came out in a thick stream; the Netherlands Minister came up to him and asked if the man was dead. [The defence here objected to witness repeating what the Minister had said. | There was no gentleman near Herbert at the time he fired; deceased and Herbert both stood upright; deceased was a stouter man than witness, but was clumsy; Tom Keating had nothing in his hand at the time the shot was fired, unless he had hold of

Cross examined .- As Herbert passed witness on his way towards Pat Keating, witness fell back to allow him to pass; witness followed them until they came up to the pantry door. The witness was subjected to a very searching cross examination by Mr. Walker in regard to the position he occupied in the room | Witness saw a pitcher raised in Pat Keating's hand, but could not say how it was broken; Herbert drew the pistol at the time they met; did not see any chair in Herbert's hand; Pat Keating had his arm around Herbert's neck; witness thought of interfering to separate the parties just as the pistol was fired; does not think he testified at the jail that he did not change his position during the affray. The witness here illustrated upon Mr. Brad-ley the manner of the sheoting] Witness was near enough to have knocked the pistol up if he had chosen. [The witness here appeared to be considerably exhausted by the trying examination to which he was subjected, and asked for a glass of water.] Witness had not agreed to pay any money for feeing counsel in this case; Herbert was not in a bent posture at the time of the shooting; what Herbert got would not have hurt a child four years old.

Mr. Bradley here objected to a question by the prosecution as to the rule of the house in regard to the breakfast hour as irrelevant. Mr. Preston contended that it was the res gesta, the origin of the transaction.

The point was argued with great power and legal acumen by counsel on both sides, at the end of which the court decided that at a proper stage this evidence might be introduced. At half-past 4 in the afternoon, the court adjourned until to-day.

TRIED DAY.

Another sweltering day in the court room. The prisoner was brought in at twenty minutes past ten a m.

Henry A. Willard called .- Is one of the proprietors of Willard's Hotel. [Mr. W. exhibited a diagram of the dining room, prepared by an architect, on which the point at which the difficulty commenced was represented by a round black table | Deceased was an ordinary waiter at his hotel; was at home on the day of the affray; saw no portion of it; was in the second story looking in the yard; when it commenced thinks it was between 10 and 11 o'clock in the morning A card containing the rules of the house at Willard's was presented by the prosecution for the purpose of questioning witness in regard to it.]

Defence objected. Mr. Preston said the object of the prosecution was to bring home to the prisoner the knewledge of the regulations at Willards'. Mr. Walker objected to the hours of meals at Willards' being stated to the jury, and asked that the card should be handed up for the inspection of the Court. Mr Bradley could not conceive what these rules had to do with the case; these rules could not affect passed between deceased and Herbert He contended that it was purely a collateral inquiry. The Court thought every word of conversation that occurred in that room, on that morning is evidence; thought this was sufficiently connected with the occurrence to be admitted Mr. Bradley asked to have an exception noted to this ruling. Witness testified to these being the rules of the house; witness read from the rules where the proprietors ask guests to report any negleet or disrespect on the part of servants also a rule fixing breakfast between 7t and

An objection was raised by defence to witness stating what other regulations, not Irinted, were adopted in regard to the breakfast hour, and the court decided in favor of

Mr. Willard was asked by Mr. Preston how many guests were in the house at the time of Mr. Bradley objected to the question.

Mr. Preston stated that the purpose of the prosecution was to show malice on the part of the prisoner in using a dangerous weapon at that particular place and time; they thought it pertinent to show that he was acting under the influence of reckless malice in using the pistol in the community of a hotel, where rules community. A man would be placed in a very different position in a wilderness where there was no help

The Court thought that it was wholly immaterial how many guests were in the house at the time. Deceased had been in his employ at various times for several years; at the last time about six weeks. taining fund each witness must be examined Mr. Bradley objected to a question as to the reputation of deceased. [A consultation was held by the counsel for defence, at the end of which Mr. Bradley asked the Court to refer to the case of Cook

The Court examined the case and stated that no rule had been laid down there. The Court decided the testimony as to the good character of the witness to be inadmis-

[Dr. Miller took the stand for the purpose of making an explanation that the post mortem examination took place late on the night of the 8th of May, instead of on the 9th] Mr. Preston stated that the prosecution desired to show that the deceased was a mild in-offensive man.

[An interruption was occasioned at this point through the illness of one of the jurors, Mr. Owens requiring the presence of Dr. Miller in the jury box. The jurors are several of them in their shirt sleeves, and fanning themselves vigorously]

The judge decided finally that the question could not be put to Mr. Willard as to the good character of the deceased

Mr. Willard cross examined .- Pat Keating was a steward at his house; witness has furnished Pat Keating with five dollars for the purpose of feeing counsel since this trial commenced; Pat Keating made no direct application to him for money for the purpose; two persons applied to him and received the money; Pat Keating came up with them, but | city. witness does not know that Keating heard the application; these persons did not belong to

The Court announced here that one of the jurors (Mr. Owens) was ill, and recommended that a recess be taken

After a recess of an hour and a quarter Dr. Miller stated that Mr. Owens was utterly unable to attend on the jury to-day; that he was laboring under prostration and exhaustion from the heat. He thought there was a reasonable prospect that this juror would be able to attend to-morrow

Mr. Walker inquired what would be the rule of the Court if the juror were unable to attend to-morrow?

The Court, while reserving its decision until the case should came up, stated that in case of a juror's illness or death it would be necessary to discharge the others and begin anew After some debate as to the hour of meeting next, the court was adjourned until halfpast nine, a. m., of to-morrow.

THE THIRD DISTRICT SCHOOL (female department) on Wednesday underwent its annual examination before quite a numerous company of visiters. The school consists of about sixty pupils, nearly all of whom we should judge to have been present. The sub jects in which they were examined were spelling, reading, dictation, mental arithmetic, geography, history, and algebra, and evidence of very decided improvement was shown. About March last, the trustees permitted the introduction of music into the school as a subject of study, and as there was no provision for paying a teacher specially for that branch, the pupils themselves united and raised chair; the French cook came in and rushed in sum, which, though small, as we presume, between them; Gardiner struck Pat Keating | induced Mr. Franklin Glenroy to give them his very faithful attention as a music instructor, and with such success as has seldom if ever been attained by any school, juvenile or adult, among us The exercises through which Mr. Glenroy put his scholars yesterday were really difficult, and tests were applied that practised choristers might not have contemned for trivial Suffice it to say that the elements of a sound musical education are already laid in this school, which we should be glad to see carried forward to something like completion. Miss Myrick, the teacher proper, also assists in this interesting branch. Glees were well sung, and two echo songs with an excellence, which we were quite unprepared to expect -

EFFECTS OF INTEMPERANCE.-Last night a young man was arrested by Watchmen Horner and Burch for stealing a watch from a gentleman named McHenry. He had been drinking, and was taken to the guard house where he remained until this morning. When the guards went to the cells to see that the prison- | e.sh. ers were safe, this unfortunate person was standing in the middle of his cell, trembling in every limb, hands uplifted, and imploring an imaginary demon to spare his life. He would run to the darkest corner of the cell and hide his face, but all to no purpose, his tormentor would again be before him, and again the prayers of the poor sufferer would be heard Such scenes are more effective than any temperance address.

DISORDERLY GATHERINGS -The auxiliary guard and police officers, we are informed have been instructed to disperse the gatherings of old and young men upon the streets during the day and night. It is a fact that for months past crowds of persons have been wishing to supply themselves with allowed to gather upon the streets, obstructing the sidewalks, and using language very offensive to ladies and others who are obliged to hear it while passing. No man desires to offend respectable ladies; but in nearly every instance indecent language is used thought-

THE FIRST DISTRICT SCHOOL, female de partment, under the charge of Miss Middleton, underwent its examination on Friday last before the majority of the members of the Board. The distinguishing features in this school are promptitude and thoroughness; and so well did the pupils approve them-selves to the examiners and visitors that really high enthusiasm was aroused. It must be gratifying to teachers and pupils in no small degree when they thus win the meed of approbation.-Intelligencer.

THE NATIONAL THEATRE will be re-opened on Monday night next, by Manager Ford, with an excellent company, for a grand dramatic festival, when will be presented the comedy of "Laugh When You Can," in which Mr. H. A. Perry sutains the principal character, and "The Toodles," Mr. John S. Clarke as Mr. Toodles.

RESISTING AN OFFICER -This morning Mrs. M. Hanlon was arrested by Officer Wise for resisting Officer Wm. Martin while executing a civil process which had been placed in his hands. She was taken before Justice Goddard. who, after hearing the evidence, committed her to jail in default of security for court.

FIGHT IN THE FIRST WARD .- Last evening fight occurred if the west end of the city between Messrs. W. Baker and - Streaks. It is said to have grown out of party matters. No arrest was made, as the parties were separated before the officers reached the spot. WATCH RETURNS .- Charles Finnegan, disorderly conduct; fine and costs. Mary Ellen Hope, vagrant; workhouse. Henry Michelet, larceny ; jail for court.

JUSTICE ASBFORD .- Mr. Editor: Please insert in the Star the following letter

WASHINGTON, July 15th, 1856. GEO. W. PHILLIPS, Esq. - Dear Sir : I recaived your friendly communication bearing date the 11th of July inst., interrogating me with regard to my supposed connection with and order were as requisite as in any other | the so-called "Know Nothing party," to which I most cheerfully and unequivocally reply.

You will recollect that about eighteen months go I had a conversation with you on this subject, when I then told you, as I did others, that I was not a member of the party in question, that I had some months previous to that time visited one of their councils, but that I had never made up my mind or even thought of leaving the Democratic party, to which, you know, I had always belonged, and therefore I declined having anything more to do with them. Since then I have been repeatedly urged to take the degrees to entitle me to membership, but have always declined, giving my reasons therefor. And I now say to you, what I then said. and more, that I never was, nor can I ever be a member of the "Know Nothing party," and do assure you that I have no more sympathy for that party than yourself, and in conclusion I give you the further assurance that I am resolved, as heretofore, to support most heartily and zealously the nominees of the late Democratic Convention for President and Vice President. You are liberty to use this as you please.

Respectfully, your obedient servant. C ASHFORD.

Terrible and Disastrous Bailroad Collision. PHILADELPHIA, July 17 .- As an excursion train of the children of St Michael's Church was proceeding on the North Pennsylvania railroad this morning, at about 7 o'clock, it came in collision with the down train. Six cars were entirely demolished, thirty-nine persons killed, and sixty-nine maimed or wounded. Many of the wounded were conveyed in carriages to Germantown, and surgeons were dispatched to the scene of the dis-

The excursion train contained eleven hundred children, parents, and teachers. The trains came in collision at a curve near Fort Washington, with the down train; the latter was going very slowly. The excursion train was going very rapidly, endeavoring to reach the stopping place. Both the locomotives were crushed, and three cars of the excursion train, together with those that were consumed by fire. A number was crushed beneath the ruins, so that extrication was impossible. The scene was most heart-rending.

The names of the killed are as follows Rev. Daniel Sheridan, chorister of the church. body not recovered : Hugh Campbell, Barry Kelly, James McIntire, John Dogan, Edward Hall, Jno. Rivers, James Hickey, Wm. Barnard, Henry Harris, Mary McLean, Catherine McBurk, Ellen Clark, Sarah McGrugan, Catharine McGrugan, Kate McGirr, Jno. Brady, Margaret Meaney, John McGuire, James Carney, and Henry Harrison, the engineer of the up-train.

In addition to the above, seventeen bodies were counted beneath the ruins of the cars mostly consumed: eleven men and women and two children were consumed in one car.

The scene of the disaster is fourteen miles from the city, in the neighborhood of two curves, so that approaching trains cannot be seen five hundred yards distant. The track is also single. When the locomotives came together they rose on end, the fires of each nearly touching, and fell over across the road. The fire being scattered about the wreck, the first excursion car soon caught fire, and the flames rapidly communicated to the two others piled up upon it. The most extraordinary efforts were made to extricate the unfortunate mutilated beings who were crushed amid the wreck, rending the air with their dying groans. Many of these poor beings were still alive when the flames reached them, and thus suffered as it were a double death. Their greans and shricks for aid were awful and heartrend ing, altogether beyond the power of language to describe.

Fortunately there were two hotels, a dwelling, and a blacksmith shop and small shed within three hundred yards of the wreck, all of which were used to shelter the dying and wounded. A number of physicians from the city and from Germantown were early in attendance, doing all in their power to aid the

Two fire engines from Chestnut Hill came to the spot, and forced water through hose to the wreck from a neighboring stream. After working for several hours the fire was extinguished, and the human remains were re- fine Ohio $6.10; standard Southern $7 30 moved. Nineteen burned bodies were removed to the blacksmith shop-three supposed to be females. Under another shed were placed eight other bodies, so charred by the flames as to defy recognition.

The body of Father Sheridan has been recovered and brought to the city. An immense crowd was attracted to the spot from the surrounding sections of country; many friends of the excursionists walked from the city, and others proceeded thither in every description of vehicle, which were made use of in bringing the wounded and dead to the

A number of unfounded reports have been circulated this morning of accidents on other roads, which indicate a feverish anxtety in the community. The bridge on the Norristown road was said to be broken down, ect. After an investigation the report was found to have proceeded from the fact that a number of the wounded had been brought in over that route from Chesnut Hill A large number of unhurt passengers also came home that way. As the list of the wounded published, were mainly those who were brought down over the north Pennsylvania road, the number thus stated is less than were actually wounded, which could not be less than one hundred. The Board of Directors had a meeting this morning, and passed resolutions of sympathy with the bereaved, expressing its determination to relieve the distresses incident to the calamity as far as is in its power. A subscription has been started to contribute to this

Virginia Old Line Whig Convention.

RICHMOND, July 17 .- The Convention me at ten this morning, and the Committee on Resolutions not being ready to report, the Convention was addressed by Messrs. Terrett of Orange, Johnson of Richmond, Speed of Lynchburg, Kilby of Nansemond, and Carter of Loudoun, all of whom expressed themselves strongly in favor of Fillmore and Donelson, and also of a reorganization of the Whig party.

The Convention reassembled at 5 p m. Mr. Macfarland submitted a report from the Committee on Resolutions. In doing so he said, that the committee was unanimously of opinon that the preservation of the peace of the Union, the perpetuity our institutions, and of the Union itself, depended on the influence exerted by the Whig party hereafter. The report consists of a preamble and nine resolutions, the former setting forth the condition of the country, and the nature of the crisis that it is thought calls upon the Whig party to exert its power for the safety of the The resolutions declare in substance-

First. That the Whigs of Virginia have had no agency in nominating any one for the Presidency, and decline doing so, and therefore are free to select one among the candidates already before the public; but in making their selection, they do not merge themselves in that party whose candidate they may adopt, but will preserve distinctive principles. Second. Denounces the Republican party.

in nominating President Pierce declared that all agitation on the subject of slavery in Congress and elsewhere should cease-and the President having reiterated that pledge it was not to be expected that his Administration would have encouraged this agitation by giving its countenance and patronage to agitators. and by disturbing, for mere party purposes the compromises that had long preserved the peace of the country Fourth. That the Democratic party has by its administration of the Government forfeited the confidence of all conservative men, because of its violated pledges and flagrant abuses in its domestic policy, and by the blunders of its foreign relations Fifth That no Whig can consistently support the Democratic candidate for the Pres idency; urging, in addition to other objections to him, that he sustains squatter sovereignty, the absolute power of Congress over slavery in the Territories, and that he is responsible for the dectrines of the Ostend manifesto. Sixth Approves the compromise of 1850, and resists the repeal or modification of the Kansas Nebraska act. Seventh Considering Millard Fillmore the most suitable man for the Presidency at the present alarming crisis, the Convention recommends him to the nation; and while they disclaim all intention of adopting the princi- jy 8-2w
